1235. SHRI ASHOK MITRA: Will the Minister of RAILWAYS be pleased to state:

(a) whether, under the Constitution, Railways do not belong to the Union List of the Seventh Schedule;

(b) whether, given this fact, any outlay for developing or extending railway networks in any part of the country should not be the onus of the Union Government alone; and

(c) if answer to (b) be in the affirmative, would not Government agree that there is an impropriety involved in asking State Governments to allocate funds for railways development within their territories?

THE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS (SHRI RAM VILAS PASWAN): (a) Railways do belong to the Union List.

(b) and (c) Union Government has been funding the development of the Railways in India.
